

Success Story: Zaha Hadid Architects

Your translation partner

Helping a prestigious architecture practice win global business

Zaha Hadid Architects are based in London and have a global reputation for transformative architecture and design. Comtec support Zaha Hadid Architects in tendering for new business by translating a range of content including brochures and case studies, proposals and legal documents. Often working to tight deadlines, our priority is to deliver high-quality translations and communicate Zaha Hadid Architect's brand message consistently.

As an internationally renowned architecture practice, Zaha Hadid Architects are invited to tender for projects worldwide, meaning Comtec can be asked to translate content in any number of different languages. With a range of documents and material to translate, such as marketing content, technical specifications, legal documents and administrative information, we support Zaha Hadid in managing these highly complex projects and meeting challenging deadlines.

How do we do it?

Specialist translation team

With a wide variety of content requiring fast translation into any language, it is essential that we have a team of specialist native-speaking translators available. We hand-pick translators with sector-specific expertise, from marketing, legal or technical specialists, which helps to speed up the process, ensures high-quality translations and reduces revisions.

Market knowledge

Zaha Hadid Architects work across all sectors from cultural, transport and retail projects, each with a different market focus. We understand the importance of localising content to be relevant for each market and sector, which ensures that content is not only translated accurately into the target language, but is also aligned with our client's objectives.

Managing high-volume, complex translation projects

At Comtec, we work in partnership with our clients to help them get the most out of translation services. We support Zaha Hadid Architects by advising them on how to handle complex translation projects, how to prioritise the content they need translated, and how to meet challenging deadlines by understanding the translation process.

Zaha Hadid Architects

"We needed to outsource some of our translation requirements to an experienced team that can provide a range of translation services quickly. Comtec consistently provide us with quality translations, meeting our deadlines and helping us win business."
